

Learning from the Campesino Movement: Creating Alliances for Resilient Change

Leocadia Juracán is a Mayan farmer and coordinator of the Campesino Committee of the Altiplano (CCDA) who is on a BC speaking tour sponsored by the BC-Central America Support Committee. His presentation will focus on the power of fair trade to support sustainable land struggles and the pressures currently facing farmers in Guatemala with mega-development projects, in particular, hydro-electric dams and the extraction industry. Their struggles mirror our struggles as we deal with the issues of the ALR being dismantled to open opportunities for oil and gas exploration, the pipeline, etc. The CCDA grows fair trade coffee under the label of Café Justicia and will be for sale at the event.

Thursday, June 12, 7:00 pm

Mir Centre for Peace at Selkirk College
Castlegar Campus
Admission by donation.

selkirk.ca/mir | 250.365.1261
Shaping our futures through conversations that matter.